Marriage Notes for WILLIAM KENNEY and SADIE STEWART:
MARRIAGE: Kenney-Stewart.
Mr. William A. Kenney and Miss Sadie Steward were married at the bride's mother's, Mrs. Tillie Steward, at noon on Wednesday, September 24, by Rev. J.C. Elliott, assisted by Rev. A.T. Hemphill. After the marriage ceremony, which was celebrated on the porch, the guests being assembled on the lawn in front of the house, and excellent dinner was served and much enjoyed by the guests--there being about forty present. The officiating clergyman had married the groom's father and mother, and baptized both groom and bride in their infancy. I shall not attempt a description of the attire of the groom and bride, except to say that they wore neat and handsome costumes, very becoming for this happy occasion. There were many handsome and useful presents given by those present, consisting of such articles as will be employed in their every day life. A few were of an ornamental and decorative character for the parlor and mantle. On Thursday a reception was given at the groom's father's home in Swanwick, where over fifty guests sat down to another excellent dinner. Here additional presents were given, and if the writer was not misinformed, there were only a few articles duplicated. The newly married couple took the afternoon train to St. Louis, for a short wedding trip. Thus a new family has been started on life's journey with the best wishes and congratulations of their many friends. Their home will be in Swanwick, the groom have bought and furnished the neat an beautiful property recently occupied by Mr. Robert Smiley. --J.E.C.

Dear Howard,
All to myself, I think of you
Think of the things we used to do
Think of the things we used to say
Sometimes I laugh
Sometimes I cry
but I keep each lonely thought all to myself.

OUR CHILDREN
All of our children have left us to live in a home of their own.
They don't know how we miss them or how used to them we've grown.
Maybe someday they'll have children to fill their hearts with joy--
And later when they've grown up they'll leave them for a girl or boy.
Then they'll know the heartaches you feel for many a day
When at last you realize that your children have flown away.

The community was shocked last Sabbath morning when the message was received from Denver, Colorado, that Mrs. Effie Kenney McCreight was dead. Until a week before she had been in her usual health, but an attack of la grippe developed into pneumonia and later Saturday evening death claimed its own. By her death a loving wife, a devoted mother and a self-sacrificing sister has gone. Effie McCreight, a daughter of the late John and Lucy Kenney, was born in Swanwick, Ill., on Feb. 23, 1885, and died in Denver, Dec 4, 1915. Her early life was spent in Swanwick, until her marriage in 1904 to J.H. Maddox, who preceded her in death seven years ago. To them were born two children, Mildred and John. On Nov. 2, 1911, she was united in marriage to J.L. McCreight of Marissa, who with an infant daughter are left to mourn her loss. At an early age, she united with the United Presbyterian Church of Swanwick, later her membership was transferred to Marissa, and on her removal to Denver, she became a member of the South Broadway Presbyterian Church. Besides her husband and three children, there are left to mourn 2 brothers and 2 sisters. Her brother, A.B. Kenney of Wellington, Kans., and sister Irene of Denver, were with her at the last. Her sister, Mrs. H.G. Fulton of Aurora, Neb., arrived a few hours too late. Her last message to loved ones at her bedside was, "I'll meet you all at Home". The funeral service was held in the U.P. church of Marissa, Tuesday afternoon at 1:30, and was conducted by Rev. E.E. Douglas. The many beautiful floral offerings showed the esteem in which the deceased was held. The interment was in Marissa cemetery. By her sudden death, we are admonished, "Be ye also ready for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of Man cometh."

NARRATIVE OF AMERICA ELVIRA GAULT AND WILLIAM FINLEY
Written by Thomas H. Finley of Marissa , Illinois

The following is a brief history of John Steele Finley, branch of the Finley family springing from America E. Gault.

John Steele Finley and his bride settled on a farm in the Hill Prairie region just south of the Hill Prairie cemetery. Elvira Jane Finley was the namesake of her grandmother America Elvira Gault. In this family there are twenty-four grand children and twenty-four great grandchildren, which stem from America Elvira Gault.

America Elvira Gault was born December 6, 1817, in Lincoln County, Tennessee. The girl, like all the young of those strenuous times, early developed into a self-reliant young woman. She married William Finley, one of the seven children of Thomas Finley and Jane Lyle Finley. She was seventeen years old at the time of her marriage. Thomas Finley and Jane Lyle were married in Ireland about 1807.

My impression of America Elvira Gault, my grandmother, were obtained from my father, John Steele Finley. One cannot but be impressed with the charactor and stern qualities of the woman. Along with the sober attitude was a deep vein of genuine humanity. Sympathy and sincere helpfulness were cardinal virtues of the woman. She was ever ready to aid a neighbor in need. She would ride horseback for miles to render service to them in need. Time of day was no bar.

William Finley and his bride lived in the Hill Prairie area. They just started a farm under the usual terms and conditions of the time. When a creek was near---a water supply for laundry and stock, as well as the human supply. The family attended the Covenauter Church at Eden, Illinois. They traveled the six miles to church in a wagon drawn by an ox team. The Finleys were Covenanters dating back, at least four generations. They had left their native Scotland to avoid religious persecution.

America Elvira(Gault)Finley , mothered seven children. One of the children died in infancy. Six of the children grew to manhood and womanhood, and, with one exception, lived in the Hill Prairie region for their natural lives.

John Steele Finley was the oldest of the children of William Finley and America E. Gault. He married Margaret Pollock, the daughter of the late Thomas and Mary Pollock, immigrants from Scotland. This orphan girl was married at the ripe age of eighteen years. The John Steele Finley family consisted of four boys and four girls whose names were as follows:

William Hugh	Elvira Jane	Mary Dora
Harriet Emily	Thomas Henderson	Edwin Brown
Lois Ethel	John Melville

James Lyle and Mary Jane Welborn

James Lyle (Jr.) was born 24 Feb. 1828 most likely in Wilkes County Georgia. The county boundries were changing every few years due to the taking of the Cherokee Lands and subsequent Land and Gold Lotteriers. The family homestead is located in what is now Taliaferro, County right near the Wilkes, County border, near Little River and Lick Creek. Part of the orginal homestead is still owned by my mother, aunt and great uncle. The Saggus-Lyle Cemetery is still there and maintained by my great uncle.

James Lyle was born to James Lyle (Sr.) and Elizabeth Finley (daughter of James and Isabella Thompson Finley). James Sr. died 1 Nov. 1830 when James(Jr.) was just 2 years old and left Elizabeth a widow for more than 50 years. Elizabeth is still listed on the 1880 Wilkes County census as 86 years old. She is livng with what I believe to be her grandaughter (Emilene Hackney-McKinney) and her grandaughter's husband (A.C. McKinney). Emilene is the daughter of Margaret A. Lyle and John O. Hackney. Margaret is James' (jr.) sister.

In the The Early Records of Georgia, Volume II, Wikes County page 225 and 252 the following 2 entries can be found:

LYLE, JAMES dec'd. Jas. and John Finley, admrs. Warrant of apprmt Nov. 1, 1830. Writ of dower to Elizabeth Lyle, wid of Jas., Mar. 3, 1831 in 294 acres on Little river as set forth in a certain deed from Isabel Finley, admx and Samuel Finley, admr of Jas. Finley, dec'd. Dec. 13, 1824. (This James Sr. death)

2. FINLEY, JAMES dec'd. Isabella Finley, wid. Writ of dower Feb. 27, 1821 in 777 acres whereon said Jas. Finley, dec'd formerly lived. Returns of Isabella as gdn 1821-22. Receipt of John T. Daniel for tuition for Wm., and David Finley, minors, Isabella Finley, gdn. Board for Jensey Finley, minor. Returns for 1823, paid tuition for the above boys and Jane. (this shows where the land came from prior to James Sr.'s death)

It appears that Isabella Finley left part of her 777 acres to James and Elizabeth Lyle in 1824, and it was left to Isabella at the passing of her (Isabella's) husband, James Finley in 1821. It is possible that Elizabeth was their oldest daughter. An Elizabeth Finley married a James Lysa (I believe it to be a mistake in translation of perhaps poor handwriting) on 16 Aug. 1821. It is in Wilkes County Marriages 1792-1925. In the 1880 census the federal government asks about parents origin of birth. 86 year old Elizabeth Lyle says both her parents were born in Ireland. She also states her full name as being Marie Elizabeth Lyle in the 1770 census.

Elizabeth and son James Lyle (Jr.) show up on the Cherokee Gold Lottery of 1832 under Capt. Pollards Military District as Elizabeth Lyle widow and James Lyle orphan. Why his older sisters are not listed, I'm not sure. They would have been about 9, 7, and 5 years old. There are 3 girls and 1 boy listed on the Wilkes County 1830 census with James Lyle(Sr.) as the head of the household. By 1840 there are only two females left at home with James (Jr.) age 12 and Elizabeth about 35. Presuming Margaret has married John O. Hackney, by then about 18 or 19 yrs of age.

In 1850 the Wilkes, County Census it is just James (Jr.) 22 and his mother Elizabeth both farmers.

James Lyle(Jr.) marries Mary Jane Welborn or Wiborn (b. 24 mar 1834) on 6 Jan 1852 in Wilkes County. Mary Jane Welborn grew up in Wilkes County a few homesteads away with her mother Lucinda and her sister, Francis E. (b. 1832). James (Jr.)and Mary Jane show up on the Taliaferro County census of 1860. There children in1860 are i. Mary Elizabeth Lyle b.1852 married Obed Marshall Saggus ii. John T. Lyle b.1855 married Mary Ella Jones, iii. Francis Lyle b. 1859 m. William King Johnson. By 1870 they have 2 more: iv. James J. Lyle (my great great grandfather) married Lucy Lilla Saggus (sister to Obed that married James' sister, Mary Elizabeth), and v.Martha (Mattie) Lyle married George Thomas Edwards.

James Lyle (Jr.) enlisted in the 15th Georgia Infantry Regiment, Comapny D, which was a vital force n the 1st Corps of the Army of Northern Virginia from very near the beginning of the Civial War. The members of Company D of the 15th Georgia were called "Stephens Home Guards." The connection being Alexander H. Stephens, Vice President of the Confederacy, whose home was in Crawfordville,

James Lyle and Mary Jane Walforen

James Lyle (Jr.) was born 24 Feb. 1920 and Mary in Weeks County, Georgia. The family lived in Weeks County every few years due to the taking of the Tarnsboro Lands and subsequent Land and Claim Lotteries. The family numerous is located in what is now Tallahoma, Georgia only now the Walforen, Georgia by bride, [illegible] and son Oscar. Part of the original [illegible] land [illegible] by my mother, aunt and uncle [illegible]. The Sequoia Conservancy is [illegible] and [illegible] by my [illegible] [illegible].

James Lyle was born to James Lyle (Sr.) and Dorothea Fenny (Langley) of Weeks and [illegible] Tharsboro Fenny, [illegible] 1890 when James (Jr.) was [illegible] 2 years old [illegible] Dorothea [illegible] 20 years. Dorothea [illegible] 1920 when James (Jr.) was [illegible] 20 years old. She [illegible] with [illegible] [illegible] (Gordons Hardy/Mortonsey) and [illegible] (L.C. McKinney). Emilene is the daughter of [illegible] and John C. Hardy, [illegible] James' (Sr.) [illegible].

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] 212 and 122 [illegible] [illegible] [illegible].

LYLE, Mary Jane, 84, [illegible] Weeks, Wednesday [illegible] 1, 1970 [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] 1, 1931 in [illegible] on [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Ga., the seat of Taliaferro County. Sadly, James Lyle was killed defending Richmond during the closing months of the war. He was wounded and captured at Fort Harrison, Va. 29 Sept. 1864, and died in the U.S.A. General Hospital at Fortress Monroe, Va., 19 Oct. 1864.

I believe the homestead listed in the 1860 census with James Lyle (Jr.) and Mary Jane Wilborn is the same homestead handed down from Isabella Finely to James Lyle (Sr.), then to his wife, Elizabeth Lyle and then to their son James Jr. and Mary Jane. Mary Jane and James (Jr.) and all 5 of their children are buried in the Saggus-Lyle cemetery. Orginally it was in Wilkes, but by 1825 Taliaferro County was created and between 1825 and 1860 its boundtries extened north several times and eventually included the land that sits near Lick Creek and Hillman Road. It appears that Elizabeth moved with her daughter and son-in law and eventually her grandaughter and grandaughters husband in the 1880s staying in Wilkes. The 1890 census was destroyed by fire so we don't know if she was around for the 1890 census. If she was she would have been about 96 years old.

JOHN D. LYLE, M. D. C. The very desirable quality of faithful citizenship is not monopolized entirely by those of us who have been born beneath the protection of the flag of that nation whose citizens we are. That fact has been demonstrated on repeated occasions, and is particularly exemplified in the history of the Lyle family. Born and reared in Ireland, both the father and grandfather of John D. Lyle gave to the land of their adoption every drop of allegiance and loyalty that was common to their make-up, and rendered a service to the Union that was p. 1199 surpassed by none; in that they did what they could for the cause. In this connection it is entirely in keeping with the demands of this occasion that more extended mention be made of the ancestry of John D. Lyle.

Dr. John D. Lyle is the son of William J. Lyle and the grandson of James Lyle. The last named was born and reared in Ireland, in the town of Larne in County Down, and there he also settled down and reared his family. His wife died just prior to the immigration of the family to the United States, and when James Lyle arrived in America he was accompanied by his children, among whom were: Martha, who later became the wife of James H. Dickey, one of the old and honored merchants of Sparta, Illinois; Eliza, who married James Miller and passed away in Sparta; William J.; and Thomas, who made his home in Seattle, Washington, where he lately passed away, leaving one son, James Lyle settled in Randolph county, Illinois, upon a farm near Sparta. He had not been a resident of the United States for long when the Civil war broke out, and it was then that the splendid patriotism, fealty and honor of the true son of Erin was made manifest in the Lyle family. Father and son, James and William, both enlisted in the cause of the Union, as members of Company I, Forty-ninth Illinois Infantry, did valiant and heroic duty throughout the long and bitter struggle, serving with their regiment in its activities on both sides of the Mississippi river and in various campaigns until the close of the war.

Civil life again resumed, father and son returned to the farm, where they made as admirable records as citizens as they had made as soldiers. The senior Lyle continued for some years with the farm life, but the younger man became interested in the mercantile business, and his early experience in that line was gained in the employ of a Mr. Dickey, a merchant of Sparta. In 1894, James Lyle died at Sparta at the age of seventy-four years, serene in the knowledge that he had been a factor in the preservation of a great nation, and in the further knowledge of a life of better than three score and ten years well spent.

The education of William J. Lyle was acquired chiefly after his return from the war, and then entirely by his own efforts. A man of exceptionally bright mind and an inordinate desire for knowledge, he has always been a wide reader and a student of life from every point of view. While his actual book learning as a student in his youthful days was but meagre, he has by his own careful and well directed studies attained a knowledge and education that is of a high order.

After a career of several years in merchandising, in which time he succeeded to the business of Mr. Dickey, his brother-in-law, he directed his efforts in a new departure and became actively engaged in the livery and live stock business in Sparta in 1881. His mania for blooded horses was at last to be given expression, and for thirty years he conducted a breeding stable in conjunction with a well equipped livery, and he became the owner of many fine imported Percherons and standard bred stallions, as well as thoroughbred mules, and he has been in that time an important factor in improving the stock of mules and horses in Randolph county. After thirty years of life as a stock breeder he surrendered active business life and has virtually retired from the field. In 1911 he made his first trip back to the land of his birth, and incidentally to visit Europe on a sightseeing tour and to study at first hand the social and economic conditions of the old world, in which he has always been deeply interested.

William J. Lyle married Miss Ellen Miller, a daughter of Andrew Miller, and she died July 12, 1887. Their children were: Charles, of Blair, Illinois; Millard, of Telluride, Colorado; James, of Sparta; Dr. John D., of this review, and Harry, Ella and Martha, all of Sparta. P. 1200

Until 1896 Mr. Lyle was an adherent to Republican principles, but at that time he was drawn by the "Free Silver" slogan to unite with the party who was then the exponent of that cause, and he has continued in harmony with progressive Democracy since that time.

Dr. John D. Lyle was a student in the Sparta high school, about to be graduated his class, when he gave up school and, imitating the examples of his father and grandfather, went in for army life. The war with Spain had just been concluded, and he,

both sides of the Mississippi river and in various campaigns until the close of the war.

William J. Lyle married Miss Ellen Miller, a daughter of Andrew Miller, and she died July 12, 1887. Their children were: Charles, of Blair, Illinois; Milland, of Telluride, Colorado; James, of Sparta; Dr. John D., of this review, and Harry, Ella and Martha, all of Sparta. P. 1200

Until 1896 Mr. Lyle was an adherent to Republican principles, but at that time he was drawn by the "Free Silver" slogan to unite with the party who was then the exponent of that cause, and he has continued in harmony with progressive Democracy since that time.

Dr. John D. Lyle was a student in the Sparta high school, about to be graduated his class, when he gave up school and, imitating the examples of his father and grandfather, went in for army life. The war with Spain had just been concluded, and he, with many another young man, became fired with the desire to see our new possessions and to serve in the army, not alone as a matter of service, but for the experience and the wider fields of knowledge it opened up to him. Accordingly, in September, 1899, he enlisted in Company I, of the Forty-first United States Volunteer Infantry, with Colonel Richmond in command. His was the largest regiment ever recruited by the United States army and it was mobilized at Camp Meade, Pennsylvania, and sailed in November, 1899, from New York harbor for the Philippine Islands. In January, 1900, the regiment was distributed through the interior of Luzon, doing patrol duty, teaching the natives and in every way endeavoring to introduce the spirit of Americanism, until in May, 1901, when The command embarked for home, completing the world's circuit at San Francisco on June 26th following. The regiment was mustered out at Presidio, July 3rd, and Dr. Lyle came directly home.

His plans already matured for the preparation required for his profession, he became a student in the Chicago Veterinary College, being graduated therefrom in April, 1904. No fitter location could be desired than the home of his boyhood and youth, and there he settled to follow the practice of his profession, where he has remained to the present time. He is recognized as one of the ablest of his profession in Southern Illinois, and has been particularly successful in demonstrating the value of the sciences as applied to diseases of the animal world. He is a member of the Illinois Veterinary Medical Association, and is a careful student of all that applies to the profession to which he is devoted.

Dr. Lyle is able to give some of his time to the affairs of the city, and is now serving his second term as a member of the city council, in which capacity he has given especially praiseworthy service. He was chosen to that office without regard to his political faith, although he is responsive to the demands of the Democratic party, and subscribes to the doctrines enunciated by the more advanced thinkers of that faith.

On New Year's day, 1907, Dr. Lyle married Miss Mayme H. Neil, a daughter of Robert Neil, the head of an old and honored Scotch family of Sparta, and Dr. and Mrs. Lyle are the parents of two children, Catherine and Robert.

Accordingly, in September, 1899, he enlisted in Company I, of the Forty-first United States Volunteer Infantry, with Colonel Richmond in command. His was the largest regiment ever recruited by the United States army and it was mobilized at Camp Meade, Pennsylvania, and sailed in November, 1899, from New York harbor for the Philippine Islands. In January, 1900, the regiment was distributed through the interior of Luzon, doing patrol duty, teaching the natives and in every way endeavoring to introduce the spirit of Americanism, until in May, 1901, when The command embarked for home, completing the world's circuit at San Francisco on June 26th following. The regiment was mustered out at Presidio, July 3rd, and Dr. Lyle came directly home.

His plans already matured for the preparation required for his profession, he became a student in the Chicago Veterinary College, being graduated therefrom in April, 1904. No fitter location could be desired than the home of his boyhood and youth, and there he settled to follow the practice of his profession, where he has remained to the present time. He is recognized as one of the ablest of his profession in Southern Illinois, and has been particularly successful in demonstrating the value of the sciences as applied to diseases of the animal world. He is a member of the Illinois Veterinary Medical Association, and is a careful student of all that applies to the profession to which he is devoted.

Dr. Lyle is able to give some of his time to the affairs of the city, and is now serving his second term as a member of the city council, in which capacity he has given especially praiseworthy service. He was chosen to that office without regard to his political faith, although he is responsive to the demands of the Democratic party, and subscribes to the doctrines enunciated by the more advanced thinkers of that faith.

On New Years day, 1907, Dr. Lyle married Miss Mayme H. Neil, a daughter of Robert Neil, the head of an old and honored Scotch family of Sparta, and Dr. and Mrs. Lyle are the parents of two children, Catherine and Robert.

John, thank you for your reply. I appreciate you taking time to give me information, especially about the book. I will see if I can find a library close to me that has it or have a librarian make a copy of the index, then request pages. I have done that many times.
Our Lyle line has been found in Pennsylvania through John Nevin Lyle b 24 October 1851.
Yesterday I found a lady who listed another book, The Lyles of Western Pennsylvania by Paul Edwin Kaup. Will work on that one also. If I find anything of help will let you know.
Right now we are in the process of moving, but taking a little time each week to attempt to keep caught up on our family history.
I will now take time to add your McElderry information to my Lyle database. Again, my thanks. If I have questions later I will contact you direct.

My wife Fiona descends through the McElderrys and Meggws. We have recently been transcribing family notes and records into the tree which I maintain on Ancestry.

There are two principal sources of information:

1. Notes compiled by Helen Dick Megaw (b1907) which extend the research originally undertaken by her father Robert Dick Megaw (b1867).

2. A paper compiled in 1935 by Thomas Lyle McElderry (b1872) "Some Records of the McElderry family in Ireland and the United States of America", following a extended business trip. It included holidays, with relatives in Baltimore, and Talladega Alabama. The paper includes family trees drawn from the perspectives of the Alabama, Baltimore and Ballymoney branches of the family and a number of letters from the late 18th and 19th centuries.

The above sources have very little information on the Lyles, except where they've married into the McElderry and Megaw lines. I've been using Ancestry and Google searches to try to flesh out more detail, but it's hard going.

The most well-researched Lyle line is from Larne, Antrim which had pioneer settlers in Virginia. "The Lyle family" book by Oscar K. Lyle, 1912, describes their genealogy. In the notes from p340 to 342 there are references to our Lyle lines, but in the scanned copy which I found online, pages 340 to 352 are missing.

There's also a message on rootsweb in IRL-ANTRIM > 1999-10 > 0948829287 from Jane Lyle Lawson describing her descent through George and Jane (Creighton) Lyle.

I've found lots of holes and inconsistencies in trying to fit these accounts together, so I welcome any inputs you have.

HI Barb, I'm finally getting to this. Need one more piece of information.

Stella, am trying to catch up on finding another one of Jack's family.
Thomas Lyle was living in Coulterville in 1860 & 70 with his Mother, Hanna/Hannah Lyle and his sister, Nancy.
Thomas and Nancy (along with two other brothers, James and George) are buried in Bethel Cemetery at Coulterville. George and Jane & Thomas and Nancy are buried at Bethel in Swanwick. Also an infant and what looks like Tina? No other Lyles.
But no Hannah or her husband John Lyle. did ~~between~~ aft 1870
Margaret is their daughter who married Alexander Kenney, Jack's gggrandfather. Thought perhaps they were buried in Swanwick????
I know you have told me, but my mind is slipping today....think you said that Swanwick is not on the Internet or published as yet??? Am I right? If there is a book, would love to have one? Let me know the price, if so.
Margaret's obit stated she immigrated in 1846, they do not show up in the 1850 census. I think I have found them coming into New York in the passenger lists. Will be checking that out on microfilm.
According to my info, here are the death dates, is it possible to get obituaries?
George Lyle b. 25 February 1823 d. 13 November 1882 do not have a date his wife, Jane Creighton b. 31 October 1823 ~~d. 31 October 1823~~ I need a death date on this one.
Thomas Lyle b. 06 January 1830 d. 14 February 1908 never married Nancy Jane Lyle Nevin b. 15 March 1836 d. 12 July 1891 husband was Rev. Thomas Nevin-no dates or places I have John & Margaret Nevins, John's mother (no name) and a child of John's, no name at Bethel in Swanwick. No other Nevins.

These three were siblings of Margaret. There were two other siblings, William and James--have no records on either of them. A daughter of James Lyle is buried at the Coulterville City Cemetery. Her name was Eliza J. Miller. More on her if you need/want it. Will appreciate what you can do, NO HURRY. I started this note sometime ago, then had life's interruptions! So don't do this at "break neck" speed! Of course, will reimburse you. Hope all is going well with you and family.

understanding our past

Before Ellis Island

By Sharon DeBartolo Carmack

Prior to the mid-19th century, the United States had no immigrant inspection stations. Then, in 1855, Castle Garden www.nps.gov/cacl opened on the southern tip of Manhattan. Here, short inspections and medical examinations of arriving passengers took place. Castle Garden gave way to Ellis Island in 1892.

Passenger lists from 1820 to about 1891 were known as customs lists. They were usually printed in the United States, completed by ship company personnel at the port of departure, and maintained primarily for statistical purposes. So they contain only bare-bones information: the name of the ship and its master, the port of embarkation and the date and port of arrival, plus each passenger's name, sex, age, occupation and nationality. These lists (with some gaps) have been microfilmed and are available through the National Archives, and through the FHL and its local FHCs. Generally speaking, NARA's regional records services facilities have films for the ports in their jurisdiction. The guide Immigrant and Passenger Arrivals: A Select Catalog of National Archives Microfilm Publications details more fully the availability of records and indexes for each port. You'll find this catalog on the National Archives' Web site at www.archives.gov/publications/microfilm_catalogs/immigrant/immigrant_passenger_arrivals.htm or you should be able to locate a copy at most genealogical libraries.

Ellis Island Search Strategies

By Sharon DeBartolo Carmack

Dive into the Ellis Island database with these tips to keep your research afloat.

The Ellis Island database includes the digitized passenger lists of more than 22 million passengers and crew members who entered through the Port of New York between 1892 and 1924—the peak years of immigrant arrival. Among them are records of 17 million immigrants. Supposedly, finding your immigrant ancestor online is as easy as typing in a name. But for many of us, it's a bit trickier than that. To demonstrate, let's look for someone I know is on an Ellis Island passenger list.

In the days before the database, I found Angelina (Vallarelli) Ebetino the old-fashioned way, using microfilmed indexes and lists (more on how to do this in a minute). Angelina arrived on the Verona, which left the Port of Naples on Feb. 5, 1910, and arrived at the Port of New York on Feb. 18, 1910. In the new Ellis Island database, I typed in Angelina Ebetino. The results: "No records in the archive match the name Angelina Ebetino." According to the site, my choices are to:

1. Widen the search by using the last name with only a first initial. I tried that and still no matches for an A. Ebetino.
2. Widen your search by using only the last name. This found just one record, and it was for Salvatore Ebetino, Angelina's husband. He came in 1906, but Angelina and their children came in 1910.
3. Search on alternate spellings of the last name. There were six alternate spellings, and still no Angelina.

I guess it's not so easy, is it? That shouldn't be too surprising, and it's not the fault of the zillions of volunteers and programmers who built this amazing database. After all, we're talking about millions of handwritten records.

So let's take a deep breath and stew on this a minute. Obviously, I'm doing something wrong. I know she's there. But remember, I said that you need to know the original name the immigrant went by in the old country. One of the problems is that I haven't been searching under the original name Angelina used in Italy. Back in Italy, as in some other Catholic countries such as France, women were recorded in all legal documents by their maiden names, not their married names. Let's try Angelina Vallarelli. Nope. Still didn't get a match. What if I broaden the search to A. Vallarelli? Aha! There she is, but recorded as Angela Vallarelli. (Research in Italian records revealed that this was in fact her original name.)

J. McNeil, age 12, female, accompanied by E., M., H.
Possessions list 3 barrels and 4 boxes.
The ship was 242 tons, indicating a small ship- cargo was linen, whiskey, potatoes, 18 head of cattle and 6 sheep. Only 11 names in the steerage, 3 of whom were "& family". There was 1 cabin passenger.

Lea wonders why they took such a small ship to New Orleans and in the dead of winter ???

Finding New Orleans Immigration Passenger Lists
4/20/2011
Expert advice on tracking down ancestors who immigrated through the port of New Orleans.

Q. Where do I find records of immigrants who entered the United States through New Orleans?

A. New Orleans was one of the busiest US ports. Many immigrants who landed there would then travel by riverboat up the Mississippi River and settle in states bordering the river. Arrival records for passengers who ended up in Galveston, Texas, may be in New Orleans: Some ships would stop first at New Orleans, delivering their passenger lists and some passengers there, then sail on to Galveston to let off more passengers.

The easiest way to search New Orleans passenger lists is to use Ancestry.com's Immigration and Travel collection, which contains digitized National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) passenger list microfilms for New Orleans covering 1820 to 1902 and 1900 to 1952. Enter New Orleans as the arrival location. (The same records are searchable through Ancestry Library Edition, which is free at many libraries.)

You can view those NARA microfilms at NARA research facilities, or you can view the copies available at many large public libraries or through your local FamilySearch Center. To use the microfilms, you'll want to have an idea of when your ancestors immigrated.

You also can find some pre-1820 lists of New Orleans passengers in various publications, such as Passenger and Immigration Lists Index edited by P. William Filby (this publication—also searchable on Ancestry.com, but not in Ancestry Library Edition—contains arrivals at other US ports, too).

Two sites that list available resources for pre-1820 and post-1820 passenger lists are Resources for Finding Passenger Arrival Records at the Port of New Orleans, Louisiana and the New Orleans Public Library Immigration Records Guide.

SCANNED DOCUMENTATION FOR ACCESSIONED ELECTRONIC RECORDS

(Prepared for scanning: 12/10/01)

Famine Irish Entry Project, 1845-1851

Record Group # CIR

The National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) has been accepting electronic records into its holdings since the early 1970s. Documentation in paper format has accompanied each transfer of electronic records. This documentation is necessary to understand the meaning of the digitized bits of information within the electronic records.

Over the decades, NARA has had different procedures to compile documentation into an organized unit for researchers, and different expectations regarding the content and extent of any NARA-produced portions of the documentation. Consequently, the structure, organization and contents of the documentation reflect the procedures in place when the documentation was compiled and arranged. So one should expect differences in the structure, content, and organization of the following documentation from the documentation for other series of electronic records that is available on the NARA web site.

The following documentation may include out of date addresses, telephone numbers, or other items of un-revised information related to the agency that created or transferred the documentation and electronic records to NARA, to the NARA unit that processed these materials, or to the physical media of the electronic records files. The readability and visual quality are also variable. In addition, for scanning purposes NARA staff have made a deliberate selection of pages from the technical and/or supplementary documentation available for this series or file(s). Consequently additional documentation relating to this series or file(s) may be available at NARA.

Detailed Column Information

Column Title : MANIFEST IDENTIFICATION NUMBER
Column Name : CIR_MID
Data Type : Numeric
Start Position : 112
End Position : 119
Width : 8
Parent Column :
Code List : View
Agency Note : Key to FIMHR [Famine Irish Manifest Header Record] file.
NARA Note : The format of this column was designed as a right-justified, eight digit numeric column. The "codes" or values in this column are the unique "key" for identifying each manifest. The "meaning" of each code consists of the name of the ship to which the manifest relates, the code for its port of embarkation, ship arrival date [in New York], and the number of corresponding passenger records from this manifest. In many records all eight digits are filled through the use of leading zeros before the two, three, or four digit number. In some records, however, leading zeros were not used, and so some of the digits are blank. The AAD datatype for this column is "numeric" in order to assure that a search will return the appropriate numeric values, both with and without leading zeros. Nevertheless, if you sort the records using this column, the sort treats the column as if it was alphanumeric, and sorts on the values from left to right, and thus not in actual numeric order. In addition, five codes were used twice, each seemingly for a different manifest. In four of the five cases, they identify identical ship names, and the fifth set of duplicate codes is for a known and an "unknown" ship name. In all five cases, the rest of the meaning of the manifest code gives two different ports of embarkation, two different dates of ship arrival [in New York] and two different numbers for the number of passenger records from the manifest. Thus, some of the information associated with the records from each manifest having one of the five codes may be in error. The five codes used twice are: 1131, 2082, 2345, 2483, and 3471, for ships named: Margaret Evans, Hynderford, Emma Prescott, Adam Wright and "unknown", and New World, respectively.

Select an AAD Series and File Unit Page

NARA has organized its vast holdings into series and file units, based on how the organization that created the records used them. AAD offers several different ways to determine which series and file units might have the information you are looking for. Select one type of list below, click "Submit," where appropriate, and you will see all the relevant series grouped in that way. Click on a series title, and you will get more information about the series, including links to information about the data files in the series.

All Series. Click on this link to display all archival series currently in the AAD system. The list of archival series are ordered by record group number. Clicking on a series title will give you information about the series and its creator.

People. By clicking on this link, you will see all of the series in which there are records on individuals. By clicking on a series title, you will get contextual information about the series and its creator.

Indexes to Other Records. By clicking on this link, you will see all of the series that are indexes to records in other formats, such as photographs, drawings, or textual records on paper or microfilm. Clicking on a series title will give you information about the series and its creator.

Subject. The dropdown list displays a list of subjects. Click on any one, and AAD will display a list of series that have records that relate to the selected subject. Clicking on a series title will give you information about the series and its creator.

Geographic Area. Clicking on this dropdown list will present the following choices: Countries, U.S. Cities/Counties, U.S. States, and U.S. ZIP Codes. Click on any one, and AAD will display a list of series having records that identify these geographic areas. Clicking on a series title will give you information about the series and its creator.

Organization. Clicking on this dropdown list will present you with the following choices: Businesses, Government Agencies, and Non-Profit Organizations. Click on any one, and AAD will display a list of series having records that identify these types of organizations. Clicking on a series title will give you information about the series and its creator.

Time Span. Time spans may refer either to the time period when the records were created or to the time period covered by the information, or both. For example, the Civil War Sites Data Base is categorized under "1800 - 1899," since that is when the Civil War took place, as well as under "1985 - 1995," since that is when the commission that developed the data files did its work. The dropdown list presents the following choices: 1800 - 1899, 1900 - 1940, 1940 - 1955, 1955 - 1965, 1965 - 1975, 1975 - 1985, 1985 - 1995, and 1995 - Present. Click on any one, and AAD will display a list of series with records related to the selected time span. Clicking on a series title will give you information about the series and its creator.

Creator. The dropdown list will present the following choices: Civilian Agency of the U.S. Government, Military Agency of the U.S. Government, Private Source. Click on any one, and AAD will display a list of series. Clicking on a series title will give you information about the series and its creator.

What do I need to do on this page? Click on the series about which you want more information, and you will go to the description of the series, including the list of file units that can be searched.

Series Description Page

At the top of the page, below the Main Menu Bar, you will find the Status Bar. Just below that, the series and record group titles that you selected are displayed. The Series Description Page contains summary descriptions created by NARA archivists and a list of the file units in the series that are accessible in AAD. If a scanned documentation package has been prepared for the series, a link will be provided to access the scanned documentation. Scroll down the Series Description Page to find out descriptive information about the series. The categories of description, such as "Scope and Content," "Function and Use," "Inclusive Dates," or "Coverage Dates" are defined on the AAD Terminology Page. If you want to print out the results of your search, we recommend that you click on the "print-friendly version" link, and then print out the results of the page using the print function on your browser.

What do I need to do on this page? Select a file unit in which you wish to begin searching for records. Click on the file unit, and you will go to the File Unit Description Page. You may also start your search within any file unit or access scanned documentation further describing the series, if available.

At the top of the page, below the Main Menu Bar, you will find the Status Bar. Just below that, the file unit, series, and record group titles that you selected are displayed. NARA's series of electronic records contain file units. A data file unit is an organized group of similarly structured data records. The file unit description provides the researcher with

NARA has organized its vast holdings into series and file units, based on how the organization that created the records used them. AAD offers several different ways to determine which series and file units might have the information you are looking for. Select one type of list below, click "Submit," where appropriate, and you will see all the relevant series grouped in that way. Click on a series title, and you will get more information about the series, including links to information about the data files in the series.

All Series. Click on this link to display all archival series currently in the AAD system. The list of archival series are ordered by record group number. Clicking on a series title will give you information about the series and its creator.

People. By clicking on this link, you will see all of the series in which there are records on individuals. By clicking on a series title, you will get contextual information about the series and its creator.

Indexes to Other Records. By clicking on this link, you will see all of the series that are indexes to records in other formats, such as photographs, drawings, or textual records on paper or microfilm. Clicking on a series title will give you information about the series and its creator.

Subject. The dropdown list displays a list of subjects. Click on any one, and AAD will display a list of series that have records that relate to the selected subject. Clicking on a series title will give you information about the series and its creator.

Geographic Area. Clicking on this dropdown list will present the following choices: Counties, U.S. Cities/Counties, U.S. States, and U.S. ZIP Codes. Click on any one, and AAD will display a list of series having records that identify these geographic areas. Clicking on a series title will give you information about the series and its creator.

Organization. Clicking on this dropdown list will present you with the following choices: Businesses, Government Agencies, and Non-Profit Organizations. Click on any one, and AAD will display a list of series having records that identify these types of organizations. Clicking on a series title will give you information about the series and its creator.

Time Span. Time spans may refer either to the time period when the records were created or to the time period covered by the information, or both. For example, the Civil War Sites Data Base is categorized under "1800 - 1899," since that is when the Civil War took place, as well as under "1985 - 1995," since that is when the commission that developed the data files did its work. The dropdown list presents the following choices: 1800 - 1899, 1900 - 1940, 1940 - 1955, 1955 - 1965, 1965 - 1975, 1975 - 1985, 1985 - 1995, and 1995 - Present. Click on any one, and AAD will display a list of series with records related to the selected time span. Clicking on a series title will give you information about the series and its creator.

Creator. The dropdown list will present the following choices: Civilian Agency of the U.S. Government, Military Agency of the U.S. Government, Private Source. Click on any one, and AAD will display a list of series. Clicking on a series title will give you information about the series and its creator.

What do I need to do on this page? Click on the series about which you want more information, and you will go to the description of the series, including the list of file units that can be searched.

Series Description Page

At the top of the page, below the Main Menu Bar, you will find the Status Bar. Just below that, the series and record group titles that you selected are displayed. The Series Description Page contains summary descriptions created by NARA archivists and a list of the file units in the series that are accessible in AAD. If a scanned documentation package has been prepared for the series, a link will be provided to access the scanned documentation. Scroll down the Series Description Page to find out descriptive information about the series. The categories of description, such as "Scope and Content," "Function and Use," "Inclusive Dates," or "Coverage Dates" are defined on the AAD Terminology Page. If you want to print out the results of your search, we recommend that you click on the "print-friendly version" link, and then print out the results of the page using the print function on your browser.

At the top of the page, below the Main Menu Bar, you will find the Status Bar. Just below that, the file unit, series, and record group titles that you selected are displayed. NARA's series of electronic records contain file units. A data file unit is an organized group of similarly structured data records. The file unit description provides the researcher with information specific to the particular data file and lists one or more physical data tables that make up the data file. Clicking on one of the data table titles will take you to the main search page so that you can search that table. Most files consist of a single data table. If only one table is in the file unit, click on the link that says "Click here to search this data table...." If you want to print out the results of your search, we recommend that you click on the "print-friendly version" link, and then print out the results of the page using the print function on your browser.

What do I need to do on this page? Select the data table you wish to search or browse. Click on it to go to the Search or Browse Only Page. You may also access scanned documentation appropriate to the file unit, if available.

Browse Only Page

At the top of the page, below the Main Menu bar, you will find the Status Bar. Just below that the file unit, series, and record group titles that you selected are displayed. Also displayed is the Additional Information/Actions box, which allows you to Download Search Results. This link allows you to download the records retrieved by your search without translation of coded values in a csv (comma separated variables) file format. You may then open the saved results file in any spreadsheet or database program available to you. Other links available to you in this box are: View Data Layout , and View Scanned Documentation Package (if available).

In some instances, because of the way in which the archival data is structured, NARA has elected to present you with the entire data file to browse, rather than presenting you with a "search page." The data is displayed at the bottom of the page. To locate records of interest, scroll down the list. To understand the meaning of the codes in the data, click on the corresponding column heading. This will bring up the Detailed Column Information Page. Click on the "view" link to see the code list, if one exists.

What do I need to do on this page? Review the data file records and, if desired, print it out or download it. You can start a new search by returning to the AAD home page.

Also displayed is the Additional Information/Actions box, which gives you access to the Scanned Documentation Package (if available), the View Data Layout , and Search Tips.

In the gray box, you will see the columns pre-selected as the most likely or most commonly used search terms. If you want to see all of the columns that can be included in the search, click on the Data Layout link. If you want to add more columns or remove any columns from the pre-selected search list, click on the Customize Search link. After you return from the Customize Search page, the gray box will display the columns you have selected. The gray box also contains two areas for you to select specific Select Search Operators and to Enter Values for each column. Once the search operators and values have been entered or selected, then you can search the data file.

Selecting Search Operators

AAD provides you with a variety of search operators to help you narrow your search to just the records of interest to you. The operators available to you depend on the data type of the column you want to search or whether the column uses a code list. There are three basic data types in AAD: Alpha-Numeric, Numeric, and Date. You will not, however, need to know the data type of the column you want to search. AAD provides the appropriate search operators for any column you select.

If you would like to see what some records might look like, click on the "show sample records" link to see the first 25 records.

Types of Columns and Allowable Search Operators

Columns with Code Lists. For those columns that contain code lists, AAD provides you with the following search operator.

Operator	Explanation	Example
CONTAINS ANY VALUE (OR)	Click on the "Select from Code List" link and select one or more of the codes from the drop down list. If you enter the codes manually, please note that for these columns, AAD IS CASE SENSITIVE and special characters (#$%^&) and punctuation marks are important. If the code has a space in it you will need to put quotation marks around the code. You may NOT use wildcards with this operator.	If you select the code A, which for example may mean "Army", you will get all the records with an "A" code.

Types of Columns and Allowable Search Operators

Columns with Code Lists. For those columns that contain code lists, AAD provides you with the following search operator:

Operator	Explanation	Example
CONTAINS ANY VALUE (OR)	Click on the "Select from Code List" link and select one or more of the codes from the drop down list. If you enter the codes manually, please note that for these columns, AAD IS CASE SENSITIVE and special characters (#$%^&) and punctuation marks are important. If the code has a space in it you will need to put quotation marks around the code. You may NOT use wildcards with this operator.	If you select the code A, which for example may mean "Army", you will get all the records with an "A" code.

Alpha-Numeric Columns

Alpha-Numeric Columns with Only One Value. For those Alpha-Numeric columns that contain only one word or term, AAD provides you with the following operator and search options. The same operator applies to columns with code lists.

Operator	Explanation	Example
CONTAINS ANY VALUE (OR)	If you enter a word or term, you will get all records that match that word or term. You may also enter more than one word or term separated by a space. You may also use wildcards (* or %), in any position (example: %smith, sm%th, smith%, %smith%). You must enter special characters (e.g., #$%^&) and punctuation marks.	If you enter VA, you will get all records with "VA," but not "VT" or "NV". If you entered VA VT, you will get all records with "VA" or "VT" in them. If you use a wildcard, you could enter V% and get "VA" and "VT". If you entered F-16, you would get "F-16", but not "F16".

Alpha-Numeric columns that contain several values. For those Alpha-Numeric columns that contain several words or text fragments, such as a Name column that includes both the first and last names separated by a space, AAD provides you with the following operators and search options in a pull-down list.

Pull-Down Operators	Explanation	Examples
CONTAINS ALL VALUES (AND)	If you enter more than one word or phrase in the "Enter Values" box, this operator will act as if you had placed an "AND" between the words or phrases. The order of the terms/values is not important, but they must be separated by one or more spaces. You can also use wildcards (* or %) but may not use a wildcard in the first position (example: %smith). Since AAD ignores all special characters (e.g.,#$%^&-) and punctuation marks in this search operator, there is no need for you to enter these characters.	If you enter Quentin Smith, you will get "Quentin Smith," "Smith Quentin," Quentin A. Smith," "A. Smith Quentin," and "Quentin and Smith Company." You would not get any "John Smiths" or "Quentin Jones." Here is an example of a "contains all values" search with a wildcard: If you entered Quentin Smi%, you would get "Quentin Smith," "Quentin Smithe," and "Quentin Smithers," but not "John Smith."
CONTAINS ANY VALUE (OR)	If you enter more than one word phrase in the "Enter Values" box, this operator will function as if you placed an "OR" between the word or phrase. The order of the terms/values is not important, but they must be separated by one or more spaces. You can also use wildcards (* or %) but may not use a wildcard in the first position (example: %smith). Since AAD ignores all special characters (e.g., #$%^&-) and punctuation marks in this search operator, there is no need for you to enter these characters.	If you enter Quentin Smith, you will get "Quentin Smith," "Quentin Jones," "George Smith," "Smith and Jones Brother," and "Quentin and Smith Company." You can also try the wildcard option with this operator. If you are searching for George Ryan you might try Geo% Ryan. This would get "George Ryan," "Georgette Ryan," "Geoffrey Ryan," "John Ryan," "Sam Ryan," "George Smith," and "Georgette Brown."
CONTAINS PHRASE	If you enter one more word or phrase, this operator will return exactly what you entered. The order in which you entered the terms is important. You may NOT use wildcards with this operator. Since AAD ignores all special characters (e.g., #$%^&-) and punctuation marks in this search operator, there is no need for you to enter these characters.	If you enter Quentin Smith, you will get "Quentin Smith," and "R. Quentin Smith" and "Quentin Smith Jr." You will not get "Quentin A Smith," or "Quentin and Smith Company."

Numeric Columns

For NUMERIC columns, the operators are listed below. You may NOT use wildcards with this data type.

Alpha-Numeric Columns with Only One Value. For those Alpha-Numeric columns that contain only one word or term, AAD provides you with the following operator and search options. The same operator applies to columns with code lists.

If you use a wildcard, you could enter V%, and get "VA" and "VT". If you entered F-16, you would get "F-16", but not "F16".

Numeric Columns

For NUMERIC columns, the operators are listed below. You may NOT use wildcards with this data type.

Operators	Explanation	Example
EQUALS	You will get all records that match that number exactly. You may also enter more than one number separated by a space	If you enter 555, you will get just "555&quot. If you enter 555 777, you will get all records with either "555" or "777" in them.
LESS THAN	You will get only those numbers that are less than but not equal to the number you entered.	If you enter 555, you will get "554", "345", and "132", but not "555" or "556".
LESS THAN OR EQUAL	You will get only those numbers that are less than or equal to the number you entered.	If you enter 555, you will get "555", "345", and "132", but not "556" or "576".
GREATER THAN	You will get only those numbers that are greater than but not equal to the number you entered.	If you enter 555, you will get "556", "565", and "632", but not "555" or "554".
GREATER THAN OR EQUAL	You will get only those numbers that are greater than or equal to the number you entered.	If you enter 555, you will get "555", "567", and "700", but not "554" or "234".
BETWEEN (####;####)	If you enter a two numbers with a semicolon between them, you will get all numbers that occur between the two numbers, including the two numbers you entered.	If you enter 555;777, you will get "555", "576", and "777", but not "554" or "778".

Date Columns

For DATE columns, the operators are listed below. Note: You do not have to enter leading zeros for the month and day, although you may. You will need to enter all four digits for the year. You may NOT use wildcards with this operator.

Operators	Explanation	Example
EQUALS	You will get all records that exactly match the date you entered. You may also enter more than one date separated by a space. The format is mm/dd/yyyy.	If you enter 5/1/1971, you would get just "5/1/1971". If you enter 5/1/1971 6/1/1971, you will get all records with "5/1/1971" or "6/1/1971".
BEFORE	You will get all dates that occur before but not on the the date you entered. The format is mm/dd/yyyy.	If you enter 5/1/1971, you would get "4/13/1971" and "3/4/1970", but not "5/2/1971".
AFTER	You will get all dates that occur after the date you entered. The format is mm/dd/yyyy.	If you enter 5/1/1971, you would get "6/15/1971" and 8/29/1971", but not "4/1/1971" or "5/1/1971".
BETWEEN (mm/dd/yyyy;mm/dd/yyyy)	If you enter a two dates with a semicolon between them, you will get all dates that occur between them, including the two dates you entered. The format is mm/dd/yyyy.	If you enter 5/1/1971;6/1/1971, you would get "5/12/1971", "5/13/1971", and "6/1/1971", but not "4/12/1971" or "7/30/1971".

Entering Values

The next step is to enter the value(s) on which you want to search in each column. If you do not make a selection, AAD will assume that you want to search for ALL values. To give you an idea of what types of values are in any column, click on the "Sample Values" link. This will display the unique values in the first 50 unique records in the first 1,000 records of the file unit. If no data is stored in the first 1,000 records, no values will be displayed.

Searching

Once you have entered search operators and values you want, you are ready to search the data file. Click on the "Search" button. Alternatively, you can click on the "Clear Form" button to remove all of the data or choices you have entered and begin again. The AAD system default is to "display ALL Columns in your search results." If you uncheck this box, you will get only the columns for which you had entered information.

General Notes on Search Operators and Entering Values

Case Insensitivity. The AAD system is case insensitive for entry of alpha-numeric values, except when they come from a code list. For example, the following values are all treated the same (Louis, LOUIS, LoUiS, etc.).

Operators	Explanation	Example
EQUAL S	You will get all records that match that number exactly. You may also enter more than one number separated by a space	If you enter 555, you will get just "555". If you enter 555 777, you will get all records with either "555" or "777" in them.
LESS THAN	You will get only those numbers that are less than but not equal to the number you entered	If you enter 555, you will get "554", "345", and "132", but not "555" or "556".

GREATER THAN OR EQUAL	You will get only those numbers that are greater than or equal to the number you entered.	If you enter 555, you will get "555", "557", and "700", but not "554" or "234".
BETWEEN (###;###)	If you enter a two numbers with a semicolon between them, you will get all numbers that occur between the two numbers, including the two numbers you entered.	If you enter 555;777, you will get "555", "576", and "777", but not "554" or "778".

General Notes on Search Operators and Entering Values

Case insensitivity. The AAD system is case insensitive for entry of alpha-numeric values, except when they come from a code list. For example, the following values are all treated the same (Louis, LOUIS, LouIS, etc.)

No Foreign Language Characters in the System. None of the archival databases currently within the AAD system use any foreign language characters.

Special Characters and Punctuation Marks Are Generally Ignored in Alpha-Numeric fields. To increase the likelihood of your finding records of interest in columns that have the alpha-numeric data type, special characters (e.g., #$%^&) and punctuation marks within the AAD system are generally ignored. This means that for the operators "contains all values, contains any value, and contains phrase," you will get the same results whether or not you type "Franklin D. Roosevelt" with a period after his middle initial. The only exception to this rule is for columns governed by a code list or an alpha-numeric column that contains a single value.

What do I need to do on this page? For each column, select the search operators and value(s) on which you wish AAD to search. Then click on the Submit button.

Customize Search Page

At the top of the page below the Main Menu bar, you will find the Status Bar. Just below that, you will see displayed the series and file unit titles of the file unit in which you are working. Also displayed is the Additional Information box, which gives you access to the Scanned Documentation Package (if available), the View Data Layout , and Search Tips.

In the Available Columns box, you will see all of the columns in the database. The columns that you saw on the Search Page will have check marks in the boxes on the left. If you do not want to search on one of those, uncheck it. If you want to add more columns to your search, check the box. You are limited to a maximum of 20 columns per search.

Under Column Title, if you click on the name of a column, a new window will pop up that gives more information about the column. Under Code List, clicking on the "View" link will bring up the code list, the corresponding meanings, and any comments. Clicking on "View" link under Notes will bring up notes that the agency or NARA staff wrote about the selected column.

When you are finished selecting columns for your search, press the "Search" button to return to the Search Page. Clicking on the "Default Columns" button will remove all of your selections.

What do I need to do on this page? Select the columns that you wish to search. Then click on the "Search" button.

Search Results Page

At the top of the page, below the Main Menu bar, you will find the Status Bar. Just below that, the file unit, series, and record group titles that you selected are displayed. Also displayed is the Additional Information/Actions box, which allows you to Download Search Results. This link allows you to download the records retrieved by your search without translation of coded values in a csv (comma separated variables) file format. You may then open the saved results file in any spreadsheet or database program available to you. The Additional Information/Actions box gives you access to the Scanned Documentation Package (if available), the View Data Layout , and Search Tips, as well.

The search criteria you selected on the Search Page will be displayed. Below that will be a statement telling you how many records in this data file matched your search criteria and were retrieved. You will also be told the total number of records in the data file searched. If your results returned a large number of records, displaying them may cover many pages, and the number of pages will be listed. You can navigate between the pages of data records retrieved by clicking on the page you want to view. You may also wish to further refine the search by returning to the Search Page.

To view your results, scroll down the page to see the first page of records retrieved. The order in which the records display depends upon the values that you entered for your search. You can re-sort the order of the records by clicking on the "Sort (Lo>Hi)" link under any of the Column Titles. For example, clicking on the "Sort (Lo>Hi)" in a Name column will order all of the records retrieved in your results alphabetically from A to Z. Once you have used the sort option, the link becomes a "Re-sort (Hi>Lo)" selection.

To view any of the individual records with the meanings of all coded values displayed, check the "Select Record" box. Clicking on the name of a column opens a new window that gives more information about the column, including any notes provided by the originating agency or by NARA staff. Pressing the Show Selected Records button will display the records you selected.

What do I do on this page? Review the results of your search and select any records for which you want to view details, including translations of coded values. Then click on the Show Selected Records button.

No Foreign Language Characters in the System. None of the archival databases currently within the AAD system use any foreign language characters.

Special Characters and Punctuation Marks Are Generally Ignored in Alpha-Numeric fields. To increase the likelihood of your finding records of interest in columns that have the alpha-numeric data type, special characters (e.g., #$%^&) and punctuation marks within the AAD system are generally ignored. This means that for the operators "contains all values, contains any value, and contains phrase," you will get the same results whether or not you type "Franklin D. Roosevelt" with a period after his middle initial. The only exception to this rule is for columns governed by a code list or an alpha-numeric column that contains a single value.

What do I need to do on this page? For each column, select the search operators and value(s) on which you wish AAD to search. Then click on the Submit button.

Customize Search Page

At the top of the page below the Main Menu bar, you will find the Status Bar. Just below that, you will see displayed the series and file unit titles of the file unit in which you are working. Also displayed is the Additional Information box, which gives you access to the Scanned Documentation Package (if available), the View Data Layout, and Search Tips.

In the Available Columns box, you will see all of the columns in the database. The columns that you see on the Search Page will have check marks in the boxes on the left. If you do not want to search on one of those, uncheck it. If you want to add more columns to your search, check the box. You are limited to a maximum of 20 columns per search.

Under Column Title, if you click on the name of a column, a new window will pop up that gives more information about the column. Under Code List, clicking on the "View" link will bring up the code list, the corresponding meanings, and any comments. Clicking on "View" link under Notes will bring up notes that the agency or NARA staff wrote about the selected column.

If you want to print out the results of your search, we recommend that you click on the "print-friendly version" link, and then print out the results of the page using the print function on your browser.

At the bottom of the screen, you will see displayed in a box the first record you selected from the Search Results Page. Each additional record that you selected from the Search Results Page is formatted in a similar way following the first record. The first column lists the Column Title. Clicking on a column title opens a window that will tell you more details about the column. The second column contains the value of data in this record. The Meaning column translates data elements that have a coded value. The last column on the right provides a link to any notes that might help clarify the value of the field.

What do I need to do on this page? Review the retrieved records and, if desired, print them out. You can start a new search by returning to the AAD home page via the Exit AAD link or via the Select Series/File Unit link.

Search Tips

If Your Results Seem Like What You Wanted

If you got the results you wanted on the Search Results Page, check the box(es) next to the records for which you would like to see the data and translated codes. Click on the "Show Selected Records" button to go to the Record Detail Page.

If Your Results Produced Too Few Records

If you submitted your search and received a "no records found" message, or you received fewer records than you had anticipated, it could indicate several things:

- The information you seek is not in the file that you searched in AAD.
- You may have applied the search operators in such a way as to narrow the search too much. For example, suppose you entered: Date of Birth EQUALS 9/23/1915. If the date of birth was not entered correctly, or your information is incorrect, you will not get the desired results. Go back to the Search Page and broaden your search by trying something like: Date of Birth BETWEEN 1/1/1915;12/31/1915. This will allow you to browse records of all people who were born in 1915.
- You may have tried to search too many columns at once. This will constrain the search. For example, suppose you entered the following information:

Column	Search Operator	Values
Name	CONTAINS ANY VALUES	John Smith
Date of Birth	EQUALS	9/23/1915
City of Birth	CONTAINS ANY VALUES	Lebanon
State of Birth	CONTAINS ANY VALUES	PA

  If just one of those pieces of information is not in the file, you will not find this individual's record. In this example, you might try going back to the Search Page and just entering "John Smith" and the date of birth.

- You may have entered the value(s) incorrectly. Suppose you entered "5/28/1933" in the "Date of Birth" column, but did not get any results. The reason may be that the data in the column did not contain the month, day, and year of birth. Perhaps it has only the year of birth. The best way to learn more about the values in a column is to read the "notes" and to view the "sample values." You can find notes by clicking on the column name on either the Search, Search Results, or Record Detail Pages. The sample values link is on the Search Page. The "notes" can alert you to unusual circumstances, while the "sample values" give you an idea of what the values in that column look like. For example, you might learn that in the "Date of Birth" column, the only data entered was the year of birth, in which case you might return to that column and just enter 1933. Another common error in entering values is to try to use wildcards or special characters in columns where the data type will not support it. See the help for the search operators for more information.

If just one of those pieces of information is not in the file, you will not find this individual's record. In this example, you might try going back to the Search Page and just entering "John Smith" and the date of birth.

- You may have entered the value(s) incorrectly. Suppose you entered "9/28/1923" in the "Date of Birth" column, but did not get any results. The reason may be that the data in the column did not contain the month, day, and year of birth. Perhaps it has only the year of birth. The best way to learn more about the values in a column is to read the "notes" and to view the "sample values." You can find notes by clicking on the column name on either the Search Results, or Record Detail Pages. The sample values link is on the Search Page. Another common error in entering values is to try to use wildcards or special characters in columns where the data type will not support it. See the help for the search operations for more information.

- If using a date field with the date data type, you may have entered the year as two digits. When entering dates for a date data type, the format is mm/dd/yyyy.

If your Results Produced Too Many Records

If you submitted your search and you received a larger number of records than you want to review, you might try narrowing your search by using one of the following strategies:

- Change the search operators. For example, suppose you entered in a "Date of Birth" column the search operator BETWEEN and the values "1/1/1930;12/31/1940," and got 1,567 records. This means that the data file had 1,567 records of individuals born between January 1, 1930, and December 31, 1940. If you knew, however, that the person you seek was born in April 13, 1936, you might narrow the search by returning to the Search Page and typing the search operator EQUALS and the value "4/13/1936." This would retrieve records for just those people born on April 13, 1936.

- Search on more columns. The Search Page allows you to search on different columns at the same time. This has the effect of narrowing the search, since the records retrieved must satisfy the conditions of all of the columns selected for searching. For example, suppose you searched for records of all air combat sorties that took place sometime in May or June 1971 and your search returned 161 hits. If you also knew that the type of aircraft you were trying to find out about was an F-15, then you could return to the Search Page, add the column "aircraft type" to your search, and enter "F-15" into that column. Now AAD will only look for records of air sorties that took place between May and June 1971 that were flown by F-15s.

- Enter the values differently. For example, if you had used the wildcard function (%), you may have received many more records than you reasonably wanted to review. Suppose you were trying to find all records on General Motors and had entered General%. The results might include records on General Motors, General Mills, General Dynamics, and General Industries, and so on. Return to the Search Page and use the operator "CONTAINS ALL VALUES," and in the values box enter "General Motors." This should restrict the results to just the values "General Motors."

- Use the "Lo->Hi" feature on the Search Results Page to sort your results. The values on the Search Results Page are arranged from lowest to highest values only on the column on the far left. None of the other columns are sorted. If you get a very large search result, you could re-sort the data in one of the other columns by clicking on "Lo->Hi" (located just below the column name). For example, if you knew the person whose record you were looking for was named "John Smith" and your search returned 1,000 records arranged on 13 pages, you might sort on the year of birth, assuming you knew that information. This would re-sort the search results from the earliest born to the most recently born.

If The Results Were Not What You Wanted

If you submitted your search and received records that did not seem to be the ones you wanted, it could be the result of several things:

- You may have inadvertently selected a wrong code from a code table.

- You may have incorrectly entered a value, such as entering NJ for NY.

- If using a date field with a date data type, you may have entered the year as two digits. When entering the dates for fields with the date data type, the format is mm/dd/yyyy.

General Tips

It is usually better to start your search "wide," that is, not put too many limits on the search. This will allow you to refine the results gradually and minimize the possibility of missing some important information.

When searching columns that do not contain coded data, be careful when entering the values. Names may have alternate or unexpected spellings. For example, if you enter the name "McCarthy," it's possible that AAD will not retrieve all the pertinent records because there may be a space after "Mc" in some or all of the surnames in the data file. These kinds of unusual circumstances may often be explained in the "notes" link. You can find "notes" by clicking on the name of the column on either the Search, Search Results, or Record Detail Pages.

Experiment with the search operators so that you become comfortable with how they work. For the fields with text (as opposed to numbers or dates) remember that using "contains any value" is like placing the word "or" between the words or coded values. If you enter "John Smith," you will return all of the "Johns" and all of the "Smiths." The operator "contains all values" acts like an "and" between words. If you enter "John Smith" in this case, you will get only all of the "John Smiths."

- If using a date field with the date data type, you may have entered the year as two digits. When entering dates for a date data type, the format is mm/dd/yyyy.

If you also knew that the type of aircraft you were trying to find out about was an F-15, then you could return to the Search Page, add the column "aircraft type" to your search, and enter "F-15" into that column. Missing Links, Vol. 6, No. 24

I am a newbie at genealogy and I am totally hooked now. However, I have not learned the simplest of research. I have been looking for months for my grandfather John Thomas LILE's parents. I have searched high and low with little success. Recently, I had my husband bring up a small box of keepsakes I kept in the basement. In that box was my own baby book and in plain sight was a lineage chart with my great-grandfather's and great-grandmother's names. Lesson learned: look in the obvious places first it will save a lot of time.

Hi Mary,
There is a book called "The Lyles Of Western Pennsylvinia" by Paul Edwin Kaup. As far as I know it is out of print. I saw a copy in the Parkersburg, W.Va. library a year or so ago. There were Lyles in the Parkersburg area that were related to me, who are mentioned in the book. I don't have any info on the ones that are contained in your message.
Gods Blessings, Dale

Dear David,

It was nice visiting with you on Tuesday evening about your book, In it, to Win It. I am sorry you do not have copies remaining. Perhaps I can find a copy in a library and have a copy made.

When I visited with Jane Lyle Lawson in California over the weekend, she told me that she had purchased a copy for you and it contained information about your family.

In going back through my Kenney surname files, I found a letter from my husband's father, Lyle Kenney Fulton, telling us about you. It was during the period when you were in the Illinois government. I am sorry to say that during at period of time, we did not follow up well with the information we were given.

Lyle's mother, Margaret (Maggie) Josephine Kenney Fulton was the daughter of John Lyle Kenney. John Lyle was a brother of David T. Kenney, your grandfather.

I am enclosing a Relationship Chart showing that you and my husband are 2nd cousins, once removed. Also enclosed is a Pedigree Chart that I think you will find interesting.

I know you mentioned that Alexander Kenney was from County Cork in Ireland, something we did not know. It may be helpful in finding out more about the Ireland families.

We are also interesting in information about the Lyle family, if you have information to share.

We have enjoyed genealogy of our families for some years. Jack will be serving as the President of the Bartlesville Genealogical Society this coming year. I have been involved for several years, as I tell others, it is my passion! I teach a Beginner's Corner at the beginning of each society meeting and teach two other one-afternoon seminars several times a year. We have three children who do not live here, 4 grandchildren and one great-grand daughter, so we keep busy with their activities. Granddaughter Larissa graduated from high school this past Friday in Ponca City. That is why we took a few hours in the library there and found the Randolph County Genealogical Society Quarterly publication with Jane Lyle Lawson's pedigree chart. Needless to say, we were excited to find her additional Lyle information.

Again, thank you for your nice visit, we look forward to hearing from you.

Most sincerely - your Oklahoma cousins,

Barbara and Jack Fulton

Kenney honored with his own trail

JUNE 27, 2010 3:00 AM • BY LES WINKELER, THE SOUTHERN

CARBONDALE - Green Earth Inc. honored longtime board member David Kenney by dedicating a trail in his honor Saturday. The brief dedication ceremony was held at the Life Community Center.

Kenney, who now lives in the St. Louis area, attended the dedication. The trailhead is on the south side of West Sunset, opposite the Life Community Center. The trail winds its way through the Chautauqua Bottoms Nature Preserve to Chautauqua Road.

Although flattered to have the trail named in his honor, Kenney voiced one good-natured complaint.

"The sign is too darned big," he said. "I'm very proud of it, and I had nothing to do with designing the sign."

Kenney, a former director of the Illinois Department of Conservation, joined the Green Earth Inc. board in 1991. He served as president of the organization from 1995 to 1997. He was secretary of the group from 2000 to 2007.

"We wanted to honor David who has been a long time board member, a person who has done a lot of things for the community and the state of Illinois," said Green Earth president Katherine Poulos. "One of the things David has always tried to do for Green Earth was to keep in mind the acquisition of land."

"It was a pleasure to work with Green Earth," Kenney said. "I found that Green Earth was doing very well in preserving open space and making it available to the public. I appreciated that work."

Current Green Earth board member Craig Hinde provided some background information. Kenney is a Carbondale native. He received two degrees from SIU and a doctorate in political science from the University of Illinois. A teacher and author, Kenney was a delegate to the Illinois Constitutional Convention and director of the Illinois Historical Preservation Agency.

"If I were to do an accounting of the treasures of Southern Illinois, that list would certainly include David Kenney," he said.

Kenney was accompanied to Carbondale by two nieces. He said he enjoyed riding through the Southern Illinois countryside again.

"Think often of what natural beauty you have around you," Kenney told the audience. "We're surrounded by beautiful lakes. I wish I could enjoy this environment all the time as I did frequently when I lived here."

After the dedication ceremonies, Poulos said she would lead a hike on the newly named David Kenney Trail. She offered the caveat that a hike might be more enjoyable on a cooler day. Kenney agreed.

"I'm not going to walk that trail today," he said. "I walked it many times. It's a pleasure. If you want to walk the trail today, that's OK, but don't expect to see me."

Dear Barbara,

Thank you for your informative letter and the Relationship and Pedigree Charts. It is apparent that you are far more involved in genealogical pursuits than I. Most of my information came from my parents and grandparents.

My father gave me information about Alexander and Margaret. Alexander I felt sure was descended from the Scots that England had placed in Scotland a century and a half earlier. Perhaps Margaret too. They went to the U.S. in 1849 to escape the potatoe famine.

Alexander and Margaret married after they reached the U.S. They had three sons. John was the oldest, born 1854; ~~John~~ James next, born in 1860; and David was born in 1864. Alexander died in 1867 in Randolph County and Margaret in 1908. My father remembered her well.

The brothers became partners in Swanwick in a grocery store. After David died in 1899 the other two parted company and John and his family moved to the Alton area. James remained in Randolph County. When I joined state government in 1977 I became acquainted with a middle aged lady who worked in government. Her mother lived in or near Alton. My wife and I visited the two one Saturday as we were on our way to St. Louis.

After John moved, my family had more relationships with James and family members because of proximity.

If Jane Lawson has a copy of my book I hope you can have access to it.

When I realized many years ago that each generation into the past ~~doubled~~ doubled the number of our ancestors I chose to not go further into the past.

If you have any questions I might be able to answer I will be glad to try. I am now near the end of my 90th year.

Sincerely,

David

James Lyle and Mary Jane Welborn

James Lyle (Jr.) was born 24 Feb. 1828 most likely in Wilkes County Georgia. The county boundries were changing every few years due to the taking of the Cherokee Lands and subsequent Land and Gold Lotteriers. The family homestead is located in what is now Taliaferro, County right near the Wilkes, County border, near Little River and Lick Creek. Part of the orginal homestead is still owned by my mother, aunt and great uncle. The Saggus-Lyle Cemetery is still there and maintained by my great uncle.

James Lyle was born to James Lyle (Sr.) and Elizabeth Finley (daughter of James and Isabella Thompson Finley). James Sr. died 1 Nov. 1830 when James(Jr.) was just 2 years old and left Elizabeth a widow for more than 50 years. Elizabeth is still listed on the 1880 Wilkes County census as 86 years old. She is livng with what I believe to be her grandaughter (Emilene Hackney-McKinney) and her grandaughter's husband (A.C. McKinney). Emilene is the daughter of Margaret A. Lyle and John O. Hackney. Margaret is James' (jr.) sister.

In the The Early Records of Georgia, Volume II, Wikes County page 225 and 252 the following 2 entries can be found:

LYLE, JAMES dec'd. Jas. and John Finley, admrs. Warrant of apprmt Nov. 1, 1830. Writ of dower to Elizabeth Lyle, wid of Jas., Mar. 3, 1831 in 294 acres on Little river as set forth in a certain deed from Isabel Finley, admx and Samuel Finley, admr of Jas. Finley, dec'd. Dec. 13, 1824. (This James Sr. death)

2. FINLEY, JAMES dec'd. Isabella Finley, wid. Writ of dower Feb. 27, 1821 in 777 acres whereon said Jas. Finley, dec'd formerly lived. Returns of Isabella as gdn 1821-22. Receipt of John T. Daniel for tuition for Wm., and David Finley, minors, Isabella Finley, gdn. Board for Jensey Finley, minor. Returns for 1823, paid tuition for the above boys and Jane. (this shows where the land came from prior to James Sr.'s death)

It appears that Isabella Finley left part of her 777 acres to James and Elizabeth Lyle in 1824, and it was left to Isabella at the passing of her (Isabella's) husband, James Finley in 1821. It is possible that Elizabeth was their oldest daughter. An Elizabeth Finley married a James Lysa (I believe it to be a mistake in translation of perhaps poor handwriting) on 16 Aug. 1821. It is in Wilkes County Marriages 1792-1925. In the 1880 census the federal government asks about parents origin of birth. 86 year old Elizabeth Lyle says both her parents were born in Ireland. She also states her full name as being Marie Elizabeth Lyle in the 1770 census.

Elizabeth and son James Lyle (Jr.) show up on the Cherokee Gold Lottery of 1832 under Capt. Pollards Military District as Elizabeth Lyle widow and James Lyle orphan. Why his older sisters are not listed, I'm not sure. They would have been about 9, 7, and 5 years old. There are 3 girls and 1 boy listed on the Wilkes County 1830 census with James Lyle(Sr.) as the head of the household. By 1840 there are only two females left at home with James (Jr.) age 12 and Elizabeth about 35. Presuming Margaret has married John O. Hackney, by then about 18 or 19 yrs of age.

In 1850 the Wilkes, County Census it is just James (Jr.) 22 and his mother Elizabeth both farmers.

James Lyle(Jr.) marries Mary Jane Welborn or Wiborn (b. 24 mar 1834) on 6 Jan 1852 in Wilkes County. Mary Jane Welborn grew up in Wilkes County a few homesteads away with her mother Lucinda and her sister, Francis E. (b. 1832). James (Jr.)and Mary Jane show up on the Taliaferro County census of 1860. There children in1860 are i. Mary Elizabeth Lyle b.1852 married Obed Marshall Saggus ii. John T. Lyle b.1855 married Mary Ella Jones, iii. Francis Lyle b. 1859 m. William King Johnson. By 1870 they have 2 more: iv. James J. Lyle (my great great grandfather) married Lucy Lilla Saggus (sister to Obed that married James' sister, Mary Elizabeth), and v.Martha (Mattie) Lyle married George Thomas Edwards.

James Lyle (Jr.) enlisted in the 15th Georgia Infantry Regiment, Comapny D, which was a vital force n the 1st Corps of the Army of Northern Virginia from very near the beginning of the Civial War. The nembers of Company D of the 15th Georgia were called "Stephens Home Guards." The connection being Alexander H. Stephens, Vice President of the Confederacy, whose home was in Crawfordville,

Ga., the seat of Taliaferro County. Sadly, James Lyle was killed defending Richmond during the closing months of the war. He was wounded and captured at Fort Harrison, Va. 29 Sept. 1864, and died in the U.S.A. General Hospital at Fortress Monroe, Va., 19 Oct. 1864.

I believe the homestead listed in the 1860 census with James Lyle (Jr.) and Mary Jane Wilborn is the same homestead handed down from Isabella Finely to James Lyle (Sr.), then to his wife, Elizabeth Lyle and then to their son James Jr. and Mary Jane. Mary Jane and James (Jr.) and all 5 of their children are buried in the Saggus-Lyle cemetery. Orginally it was in Wilkes, but by 1825 Taliaferro County was created and between 1825 and 1860 its boundtries extened north several times and eventually included the land that sits near Lick Creek and Hillman Road. It appears that Elizabeth moved with her daughter and son-in law and eventually her grandaughter and grandaughters husband in the 1880s staying in Wilkes. The 1890 census was destroyed by fire so we don't know if she was around for the 1890 census. If she was she would have been about 96 years old.

Lived in Phoenix AZ- Teacher, her papers are the sources of the John Lyle(no.1) line. Given to Barbara by Marie Pinkerton Freiberger, Bartlesville, Oklahoma.

Letter dated 24 June 1966 from Anna Pinkerton to Maggie and Howard Fulton, Blackwell, Oklahoma
Dear Cousins:
Thank you for telling me about Myrtle--I have often thought of her and I do hope she make a good recovery. I knew she had been in Washington. Ethel Bicket Clark in Zion, Illinois wrote some of the young folks wanted information about the Lyle Family. I have quite a lot of data and am glad to pass it on. Your Grandmother Kenney in Swanwick was a sister of my grandfather Lyle and Uncle Tom a brother. You remember the apple pies she kept in the top bureau drawer. The Lyles were born in County Antrim Ireland. My grandparents came to U.S. in 1847 when they were both 24 years old, in same boat--six weeks on the ocean. They were married a year later. Phoenix has been rather warm for awhile--no rain for months. We keep our coolers going. I work in my flower garden early in the morning and enjoy the flowers. Glad you said you were much the same and so am I --I am thankful
Love Cousin Anna Pinkerton

"Coenraedt Ten Eyck died in New York in 1687. By 1660 Coenraedt Ten Eyck was assessed on two rods, two and one half feet (Rineland measure), the width of his lot on the west side of, now, Broad street, New York, being the tenth lot and about twenty-five rods from the East river. The amount of the assessment was forty guilders (sixteen dollars) per foot for the building of the "Graff," or canal, which extended from the river through the center of Broad street to Beaver street. This canal was made by widening, deepening, straightening and planking the sides of a natural river that led from the swamp back of Wall street to the river. It was, however, soon ordered to be filled up, paved and made into a street. A sewer was laid through the street in 1703, from Exchange Place to Water street. In 1674 Mr. Ten Eyck was estimated to be worth $5,000 -- a fortune in those days. After his death his sons Dirck, Tobias and Coenraedt succeeded him in business."

"The ancestor of the Roosa family in America was Albert Heymans Roosa. He landed in New Netherland in April, 1660, coming in the ship called the "Spotted Cow" in company with Roelff Swartwout and others.

"The record of his arrival is found as .."Albert Heymans, agriculturist, from Gelderland, and wife and eight children."

"The wife of Albert Heymans Roosa was named Wyntje Allard or Ariens, and soon after their arrival they settled in the Esopus district at Wiltwyck, now Kingston, Ulster County, New York.

"At this place, with Cornelis Barents Slecht and wife Tryntje Bos, Mathese Blanchan and wife Madeline Jorisse, Roeloff Swartwout and wife Eva Alberts Bradt de Noorman, and others, Albert Heymans Roosa and his wife Wyntje Allard participated in the first Administration of the Lord's Supper on December 25, 1660, by the Rev. Harmanus Bloem.

"Roosa was a wealthy man for those days, bringing with him considerable property from Holland, and he speedily "occupied an influential position in the new settlement." In the Spring of 1661 he joined in a contract guaranteeing a salary to Domine Bloem who had been called as the regular pastor of the Dutch Church at Wiltwyck."

"Esopus was then without any local government, and, in fact a dependency of Fort Orange. The People were dissatisfied with such a dependent position, and wanted a government of their own. About that time Roeloff Swartwout, a son of one of the original settlers, visited Holland, and through his representations, and other influences, the Amsterdam Directors of the West India Company determined to make the Esopus settlement an independent jurisdiction."

"Pursuant to the directions of Their Lords High Mightinesses, of Holland, Governor Stuyvesant and his Council, at New Amsterdam on May 16, 1661, granted a charter to organize a civil government at Wiltwyck."

"By this Charter Evert Pels, Cornelis Barentsen Slecht and Elbert Heymans Roose were appointed the first three Schepens, or Magistrates, who with the presiding Schout, Roeloff Swartwout completed "the Organization of the first village and first judicial tribunal in this section of the State.""

"In 1661 Roosa was appointed one of the three Commissioners to enclose the New Village at the Esopus, called Hurley."

"At the destruction of the village of Hurley, on June 7, 1663, by the Indians, two of the children of Roosa, with 43 others, women and children, were taken captive, The story of the rescue of these captives by the colonial forces under command of Captain Martin Kregier is one of the most interesting of the episodes in the history of Early New York."

"In September, 1665, soon after New Netherland had become a province of Great Britain, the English Governor, Richard Nicolls, visited Kingston and placed Captain Daniel Brodhead in command at that place. Owing to that officer's tyrannical conduct, and the many acts of oppression and cruelty by the English soldiers under his command, the inhabitants rose in open hostility in 1667.

In their petition to Governor Nicholls for redress, the inhabitants set forth numerous deeds of cruelty by the soldiers"

I (Don McMartin) will not list them here but note that Cornelis Sleght was beaten, the Captain destroyed some brandy at Lewis Du Bois' house and wouldn't pay for it, and Albert Roosa was beaten and imprisoned as was Cornelis Sleght. The petition doesn't mention what words the angry Dutchmen used. Nor, in anything that I have read, is there a mention of violence by the inhabitants toward the British. But one must realize that what history I've read was written by our ancestors.

"Governor Nicholls on April 16, 1667, appointed a Commission to enquire into their troubles, and in his letter of instructions, he says:

""Albert Heymans and Anthony D. Elba have spoken most malicious words,and I look upon them as great incendiaries and disaffected persons; if their words be proved they shall not he suffered to live in this government; if they have been actors in he late riot, pitch opon them two for ringleaders and give order to inventory and secure their estates by the Schout and Commissaries."" "These troubles are called the "mutiny at Esopus" in the histories of the time."

"The Commission appointed by Governor Nicholls sat at Esopus for three days. Captain Brodhead, admitting the truth of the charges against him was suspended from his command and he died three months afterwards, on July 14th, 1667, at Esopus.

"Albert Heymans Roosa, Cornelis Barentsen Slecht, and two others "were found guilty of a rebellious and mutinous riot", and were taken to New York for sentence. Nicholls, by advice of his council on the 3d of May, sentenced Heymans to he banished for life out of the government, and the others for shorter terms out of Esopus, Albany and New York. All these sentences of the burgers were subsequently modified, and the offenders returned to Esopus"

"Governor Francis Lovelace restored Roosa to favor, and in 1669 appointed him and Louis Du Bois two of the Overseers for Hurley, called New Dorf, or New Village. "In 1673 he was confirmed as one of the officers at Esopus by Governor Anthony Colve, and described as "Captain Albert Heymans, who had been prominent in the riot of 1667."

"The records state that in 1669 "Albert Heymensen petitioned to sett up a Brewhouse and tanffatts in Hurley," and an order was made granting permission."

In another petition to Sir Edmund Andros, Governor of New York, he and others ask for a minister for Esopus "that can preache bothe Inglish and Dotche, wch. will bee most fitting for this place, it being in its Minority.""

"Albert Heymans Roosa served in the military forces of the Colony as mustering officer and in other capacities, and on April 5, 1670, at the military rendezvous held at Marbletown, he was present as Sergeant of Captain Henry Pawling's Company at which also appeared his son Arie Roosa as private, and in 1673 Albert was Captain of a company recruited from Hurley and Marbletown."

"Albert Heymans Roosa died at Hurley on February 27, 1679. In 1685 his widow, Wyntje Allard secured a grant of 320 acres at Hurley.

"He had the following children, viz.:

i. Arie or Aria, born in Holland; married at Kingston, Maria Pels, daughter of the Schepin Evert Pels." "In the records the name of Arie Roosa is indifferently spelled Aria, Ariaan, Arien, Roosa, Roos, Rose, etc."

Aldert Heymanse Roosa came from Herwynen Holland in the "Bontekoe" (Spotted Cow) and died 27 February 1679). Herwynen (also spelled Herwijnen) is in the province of Gelderland. The De Jongh family owned large fowler preserves in Hellouw" (near Herwynen) "in the seventeenth century." The father of Arien Meertensen De Jongh was Meerten.

This report also quotes Lila James Roney in "Roosa Notes", New York Genealogical and Biographical Record, Oct. 1938, pp. 397-308. "When the settlement was made at New Dorf" (or Dorp) "i.e. Hurley) Albert Heymansen Roosa was commissioned to proceed to Nieuw Amsterdam to obtain two hundred pounds of lead for the protection of the old and new settlements. On march 30, 1663 he was commissioned to lay out and fortify with palisades for the protection of the settlers against the savages. On April 7, 1663, Roosa reported to Stuyvesant that the savages would not allow the building of the fortifications because the land was not included in the treaty of 1660 and that the purchase had not been paid for." This was only a few weeks before New Dorf was destroyed by the Indians.

"This history of the Lyle family treats of the ancestors and posterity of four immigrant pioneers from Ireland who became settlers in the Valley of Virginia between the years 1740 and 1750. Their homes in Ireland were near Larne, on the Irish coast, in the County of Antrim, in Virginia, on Timber Ridge, in what is now Rockbridge County. These four settlers of the colonial period were Matthew, John, Daniel and Samuel Lyle. The first three of mention were brothers and paternal uncles of Samuel, who was a son of a Robert Lyle.

" Samuel Lyle, who was a farmer in Ireland, married, about 1680, Janet Knox, of Knoxtown. The names of his parents have not been ascertained. Janet Knox was a daughter of John Knox, the second husband of Sally Locke. Her first husband was Ephraim Knox, of no kindred to her second. Sally Locke was a daughter of David Locke, whose wife was Mary Wylie, and granddaughter of William Wylie, whose wife was Janet Black. From Samuel Lyle came six children: Mary, Isabella, Janet, James, Robert and one that died young.

" James Lyle, son of Samuel Lyle of mention, married, about 1700, Margaret Snoddy, of Ballyrickard-beg, a daughter of William Snoddy, whose wife was Jane Adams, of Ballysnodd. The Snoddys were a family from Scotland to Ireland about 1652. James Lyle had seven children: Elizabeth, Jenny, Matthew, John, Robert, Daniel and William.

"The surname Lyle, varied in orthography, is a territorial one." Its earliest form was "de Insula," which means "of the island" and was used back to the eleventh century for to families living in the Isle of Wight and Isle of Ely in England and the Isle of Bute in Scotland. The families there were probably not related. The Normans, who came with William the Conqueror in 1066, introduced surnames into England. The Latin "de Insula" was changed to the Norman-French "de l'Isle". When Norman rule ended, the 'de" was dropped and "l'Isle" became Lyle.

The emigration of Lyles from Scotland to Ireland was probably about 1606/1607. They probably came from Cantire on the west coast of Scotland to the estates of Sir Randal MacDonnell, Earl of Antrim, in County Antrim, Ireland. The background for this emigration was presented as follows:

"The coming of the Lyles to Ireland from Scotland is not definitely ascertained. Much correspondence, including Rev. George Hill, who wrote "The MacDonnells of Antrim" and "The Plantation of Ulster," and much search in libraries, inclines to acceptance the following from Mr. Hill:

""The seventh Earl of Argyle and several of his kinsmen, the Campbells, had encouraged, if not originated, for their own purposes, an insurrection among the Highland clans in 1599. Angus MacDonnell headed this movement and being defeated, one of the conditions imposed upon him by the government was the entire removal of his clansmen and adherents from Cantire. When the district was thus swept clean of its native inhabitants Argyle offered that if it were granted to him he would pay the crown a higher rent than ever the MacDonnells had done and would also forthwith plant it with respectable farmers from the Lowlands. These offers were eagerly accepted by the Crown, and without delay a number of settlers from the shires of Renfrew, Dumbarton and Ayr, who were Presbyterians took possession of the lands that had been occupied from time immemorial by the leal and gallant men of Cantire. In 1607, Sir James MacDonnell, the son and heir of the old chieftain Angus, escaped from prison, and his appearance among the clans was the signal for another attempt on the part of the MacDonnells to wrest their extensive lands from the Campbells. The new insurrection was initiated by Angus seizing his hereditary district of Cantire and expelling the settlers who indeed did not wait to be expelled. Fortunately for them, better lands awaited them on the Antrim coast, and many of them made their way with their cattle and goods across the channel. Sir Randal MacDonnell received them, Presbyterians though they were, and these people were the more welcome, no doubt, because of theirbringing with them the means of stocking their farms. In this way came many Lowland settlers to the Antrim estates who were literally driven thither by the circumstances mentioned, and who, otherwise, might never have dreamed of leaving the opposite shore."

"The family in Ireland was generally in the farmer class. Some engaged in the linen industry. About the time of their early movement to America there was a scarcity in Ireland from several crop failures and much trouble with landlords over leases. In the case of Matthew Lyle, the hatter was the main cause of his emigrating to Virginia. Lands in Antrim were inadequate for the population and rentals dear. In preference to going into parts of Ireland where were none of their countrymen, the Scotch-Irish elected to come to America where lands were plentiful and cheap, and a religious liberty existed. In Ireland their religion was tolerated rather than encouraged by the government.

"Samuel Lyle was a landholder in Ireland and possessed a farm in an eligible location about two and one-half miles from Larne in a southwesterly direction. It was in the townland of Browndodd, one of the four townlands of the parish of Larne. His residence was to the right of the road in going from Larne to Raloo, near Raloo. A lane leads to the house, which is still standing and occupied by one of his descendants. It is of stone, two stories in height and has now a slate roof. In earlier days the roof was thatched, as was the method of the Scotch. After the death of Samuel Lyle his son James became the occupant of the family home. In it his children were born. It is the old home in Ireland of the Lyle family of this book and is among the illustrations presented in it." "A descendant is in possession in 1912 of the house"

"The proximity of Raloo Presbyterian church and the family burials in its church-yard suggest their place of worship."

"Samuel Lyle was a landholder in Ireland and possessed a farm in an eligible location about two and one-half miles from Larne in a southwesterly direction. It was in the townland of Brownkodd, one of the four townlands of the parish of Larne. His residence was to the right of the road in going from Larne to Raloo, near Raloo. A lane leads to the house, which is still standing and occupied by one of his descendants. It is of stone, two stories in height and has now a slate roof. In earlier days the roof was thatched, as was the method of the Scotch. After the death of Samuel Lyle his son James became the occupant of the family home. In it his children were born, it is the old home in Ireland of the Lyle family of this book and is among the illustrations presented in it." "A descendant is in possession in 1912 of the house."

"The proximity of Raloo Presbyterian church and the family burials in its church-yard suggest their place of worship."

Tips on Using the Pre-1916 Illinois Statewide Death Index

- To avoid text wrapping to multiple lines, it may be necessary to select a smaller text size in your browser depending on your monitor's screen resolution. In most browsers, text size can be changed under the View menu.
- To print the list of deaths from the results screen, set your printer's page orientation to landscape.
- Death records were recorded in the county where the death occurred and not necessarily in the county where the parents resided. If your search does not find a death record in the county where you expected it to occur, try selecting STATEWIDE in the location option box.
- The Pre-1916 Illinois Statewide Death Index is an on-going project and does not currently include death records for all counties in Illinois or complete date spans for some counties. Click here for a list of counties and date spans included in the Pre-1916 Illinois Statewide Death Index.

Tips on Using the Illinois Statewide Death Index

- Click here for helpful hints on searching the Illinois Statewide Death Index, 1916–1950.
- If you are using Netscape, version 4.79 or below, it may be necessary to select a smaller or larger text size to align the column headings in your browser depending on your monitor's screen resolution. Text size can be changed under the View menu by clicking Increase Font (Ctrl+]) or Decrease Font (Ctrl+[).
- To print the list of deaths from the results screen, set your printer's page orientation to landscape.
- Death records were recorded in the county where the death occurred and not necessarily in the county were the decedent resided. If your search does not find a death record in the county where you expected it to occur, try selecting STATEWIDE in the location option box.
- Click here to request copies of original death records from 1916–1947 from the Illinois State Archives.
- Death certificates filed after 1947 are not currently held by the Illinois State Archives. For deaths occurring after 1947, the death date will appear in RED. Requests for death certificates after 1947 should be submitted to the Illinois Department of Public Health.
